RAFFLE

Oh la la! they certainly Can CanCan

The very name cancan was meant to shock; in 19th century France it was another word for scandal. But at the Moulin Rouge, with its joie de vivre spirit, it’s all the rage. High kicks, shapely legs, and the hope of securing the coveted souvenir of a dancer’s garter add a certain je ne sais quoi to the festivities.

This evening we have lots of garter-clad legs on hand. Select one, and for a mere $100 you may slide the garter off yourself – for a chance to win:

101 JEROBOAM OF BUBBLES

The French region of Champagne (comprised of the towns of Reims, Épernay, and Ay) was the first region in the world to make sparkling wine in any quantity. Today, the name of the region is synonymous with the finest of all sparkling wines, and winemaking traditions of Champagne have become role models for sparkling wine producers, worldwide.

Founded in Ay in 1584 by Pierre Gosset, Gosset is the oldest wine house in Champagne. It also remains one of the most prestigious, considered by many collectors and connoisseurs as the world’s preeminent name in luxury champagne. Gosset’s inimitable style has changed very little over the centuries. Gosset is now a fixture on wine lists of some of the most celebrated restaurants in the world, lauded by sommeliers for an exceptional capacity to enhance a wide range of cuisine. It is, in short, a legend among the wines of Champagne. Enjoy this magnificent 3L bottle of Gosset Brut Excellence Champagne for a most special occasion.

Thank you Joe Milo and Jean-Luc Hitta.

Thank you Joe Montana and Robert Hemphill, National Sports Distributors.

104 DIVAN JAPONAIS, 1951

By Henri de Toulouse-Lautrec, (1864 - 1901), France

Lithograph - Initialed and signed by the artist in the stone Edition 5/500

For years Lautrec’s publisher, G. Pellet, and gallerist, Edmond Sagot, desired to create a retrospective edition of his popular posters in series that would be smaller in size. Lautrec was thought to have begun work on such a project before he died. André Sauret realized this edition in 1951 using the abandoned designs. This 1st edition of approximately 500 was printed by Mourlot-Fréres and published by André Sauret, Éditions du Livre. Toulouse-Lautrec broadened the range of lithography by treating the tone more freely. His strokes became more summary (quickly) and the planes more unified. Sometimes the ink was speckled on the surface to bring about a great textural richness. In his posters he combined flat images (the influence of the Japanese prints) with type.

Thank you Suleyman Cooke, Salon D’ Art.

201 MOULIN ROUGE, 1936

M’ Michelle, French
Lithograph
Edition: HC 1/10
Image size: 25" x 19"
Signed and numbered in pencil

This exceptional original lithograph by M’ Michelle has captured the spirit of the Paris years when Moulin Rouge was visited by Lautrec and his gang of artist friends. It depicts Moulin Rouge, the famous landmark of the birthplace of the modern form of the can-can dance and entertainment. The composition is in the style of Post-Impressionism, invoking the romance of fin de siècle France.

202 APRÈS LE BAIN, 1919

Pierre Auguste Renoir, (1841 – 1919), French
Etching
Edition Unnum./1,000
Image size: 18” x 12”
Stamped “Vollard”

The bather was to be Renoir’s favorite theme, the female nude in the landscape, seen after she has emerged from her bath or swim, cleansed and refreshed, metaphorically reborn amid nature. There was no subject that better communicated the joy Renoir experienced as he gazed upon and relished the sensuality of the female form, while at the same time he could express the exhilaration he felt at being immersed in the brilliant light of the Midi in the south of France.

A dealer of importance to the Impressionists was Ambroise Vollard. Renoir had met Vollard around 1895. Then still a relatively young man, Vollard began to buy from Renoir and after 1900 became one of the principal dealers of his work. With the help of Vollard, Renoir was able to create a series based on his life’s paintings. By using a multiple-plate process, the Life & Work series is full of bright vivid colors reminiscent of their origins in oil paints and pastels.

203 PLATE 8, PAYSAGE, 1919

Pierre Auguste Renoir, (1841 – 1919), French
Lithograph
Edition: 272/500
Image size: 15 3/8" x 11 11/16"
Signed by the artist in the stone

Renoir assisted in designing the plates for this series, and oversaw their printing in 1919. The edition of 500 was later published in 1948 with the permission of the Estate Renoir. Renoir is most noted for his use of vibrant colors and celebration of female beauty. Working en plein air, a technique considered modern to his contemporaries, Renoir captured landscapes saturated with color and the rosy-cheeked bourgeoisie happily going about their daily activities. Renoir chooses to reveal a world perceived through his eyes through a juxtaposition of vibrant colors and color contrasts.

826 TOTALLY TERRA

During the vineyard development on Spring Mountain, the folks at Terra Valentine identified some cooler microclimates that while not well-suited for red varietals, were just the right ingredients to grow white wine grapes. They opted to plant Riesling because of their love of aromatic white wines and the track record for Riesling in the Spring Mountain District. Not your typical sweet Riesling, theirs is bone dry and more Alsatian in style. The rich aromatics are brought forth by cold fermentation in tank, followed by aging in neutral French oak, 300L puncheons. Taste them all with this Terra Valentine Riesling library, 2008-2012. Thank you Terra Valentine.
